One of the prominent lawyers stated that he had no doubt that there was a large organization of Ku-Klux, but that many of them were respectable citizens who had no sympathy with marauders, and that within ten days a full disclosure would be made of the [illegible] of the Order, and those who have representations of their connection would assist in suppressing it. BY STATE TELEGRAPH.

EUGENE CITY, Sept. 15.—About 4 o'clock this afternoon two fellows, who were confined in jail, broke out and escaped, leaving the third one stuck between the iron sheeting in the roof of the jail, which would have caused his death if he had stayed there much longer. They are supposed to be the same fellows that were house-breaking in the cities along the Oregon and California Railroad.

CASTELAR AND THE REDS.

Writing from Madrid under date of August 2d, the correspondent of the London Times says: Wednesday last was a great field day in the Cortes, concluding with Castelar's entering the lists against the Intransigentes. Senor Abad moved that thanks be given, in the name of the country, to the people of Almeria "for rejecting the barbarous aggression of the insurgent frigates." He was about to speak to the motion when deafening cheers from the Right and Center, and loud cries of "approved, approved unanimously," caused him to remark that, considering the state of the chambers, he would waive his right to speak. The discussion continued for a couple of hours, when, the intransigente members having exhausted themselves, the vote of thanks to the people of Almeria was passed by 162 to 14.

STORMY SCENES.

Next came on one of the noisiest debates ever held in the Cortes. Senor Prefumo moved "that the Cortes viewed with profound disgust the conduct of those of its deputies who had risen in arms against its powerful sovereignty, and excited the zeal of the judicial authorities to solicit the necessary permission to prosecute them." He supported this in a powerful speech. The house having agreed "to take the motion into consideration," Senor Diaz Quintero rose to move its ejection by a no ha lugar a deliberar. His remarks were so violent that in any other parliament in the world the Speaker would have had Diaz Quintero arrested by the Sergeant-at-Arms. But not so in Spain. The sacredness of the "deputy" is carried to such an extent that as much treason is talked in the Cortes as in the clubs or the cafes. So Diaz Quintero went on to apostrophize the provinces of Spain thus: "O unfortunate provinces! if you do not save yourselves, this insensate government and this insensate majority will lead you to the loss of your liberty, to the loss of the republic, and to the loss of the country!" Here the Vice President seemed to wake up, and attempted to stop him by ringing his bell furiously, and telling him he could not tolerate his preaching insurrection in that place. The fiery little deputy impudently replied that he had a right to his opinions, and that he rebelled against the despotism of the Vice President and the intolerance of the chamber. It was really insupportable.

CASTELAR'S SPEECH.

Great was the uproar which ensued, but at last something like order prevailed and the no ha lugar a deliberar was rejected. Discussion then was opened on the original motion of Senor Prefumo, and continued many hours, thanks to the absurd rule which allows every member to demand to speak who is "personally alluded to." Thus the house was treated to a dozen or more "speeches," some of them most foolish, others most seditious, and not one worth listening to, except the brilliant improvisation of Senor Castelar. The great orator had not intended to take part in the debate, but two Intransigentes having made allusions to him, he called for a turn. One of these was Senor Cala, who, in the course of a speech defending the conduct of those who had set up independent cantons, said much of its ... was the faith of those who had [illegible] in order to attract the elements known to be hostile to the republic, the conservative element, those who were supposed to be in secret alliance with Serrano, who had taken part in the coup which had in good [illegible] the founders of the Amadeo as a means of defense. The one was Senor Olave, who taunted Castelar on the pertinacity with which he clung to attack the Savoy dynasty, not only when it was in the plenitude of its power, but afterward. Castelar emphatically denied this. He said he opposed the monarchy of Savoy only when it was triumphant, for he never struggled but with the strong. When the king ceased to be so, nobody was more respectful than he, and he had proofs, that not only the king, but also his august family felt it. Moreover, he had been deputed by the Cortes to draw up, according to its abdication, was a great compensation to him for all the torments he had passed through in Spain. Next, he rebutted the idea that the motion before the house savored of monarchism. He said it was nothing of the kind; it was a vote of censure every legislative body had a right to pass upon its errant members. He would defend and vote it as a purely republican motion. Then he entered into the really important part of his speech—namely, Senor Cala's allusion to his conservatism. He denied the accusations inferred. He had not and would not have, any alliance with the old monarchical conservative party. His great ambition had been that the republic should be consolidated not by the conservative party, but by the republican party, and he desired this should be done by the republicans displaying the gifts of command which had ever distinguished the conservatives, and by virtue of which they had hitherto always eliminated the republican party from public life in Europe. He called their attention to the phenomenon that the republican party had hitherto passed like a meteor across the sky of Europe. It had reigned a few months in Italy, a month in Vienna, a month and a half in Frankfort, scarcely a year in France, and had disappeared, like a fiery comet, not driven away by its enemies, but by its own errors, intemperance, and passions, and above all, by its insensate revolutions against itself, which were its death. He had desired that his beloved Spain should be an exception to this rule, and the only way she could be so was by the republican party displaying the qualities essential to a party of government—qualities "as distant from the blind repression as from revolutionary utopianism." Hitherto the republicans had had many prophets among them, but few politicians; they revelled much in ideal, but they knew little of reality; they went up to heaven in thought, but they stumbled at the first pitfall they met on earth. This had ever happened in history—the propounders of progressive ideas had never been the men to consolidate them.

Castelar once more resorted to his favorite mode of illustration—namely, the historic:

"Ah, gentlemen, how sad the spectacle we have presented as a party in Europe! All that we have initiated the conservatives have realized! Who struggled for the self-government of the Hungarian nation? A republican, Kossuth. Who realized it? A conservative, Deak. Who sustained the idea of the abolition of serfdom in Russia? A republican, Hertzen. Who realized it? An emperor, Alexander. Who sustained the idea of the unity of Italy? A republican, Mazzini. Who realized it? A conservative, Cavour. Who promoted the idea of the unity of Germany? The republicans of Frankfort. Who realized it? An imperialist, Bismark. Who aroused the thrice-suffocated republican idea in France, after the first republic being a tempest, the second a dream, and the third but a name? A poet, Victor Hugo, a great orator, Jules Favre, and another great orator, Gambetta. Who consolidated it? A conservative, Thiers. And whose sharp sword now protects it? That of a general of the Cesars, MacMahon."

Waxing warm with his theme, Castelar remarked that he consecrated his life to the advent of the republic in Spain, and with a pure desire that it should be guided by the republicans, but guided for the good of all. Then, turning to the left, he burst out into this impassioned appeal, which made an extraordinary sensation, delivered, as it was with all the vehemence of the oratory he knows so well how to use:

"But you of the minority, what is it you want? What is it you believe? Do you believe that with your conduct, your proceedings, your cantons, your rebellions, and your shameless demagogism—this demagogism without name, without responsibility—you can save us? No! with this criminal madness, this insensate suicide, you can only expect the prompt destruction and irredeemable dishonor of the republic. Ah, gentlemen, the republic must be saved by the ancient, the real, the historic republicans, and must be saved from this ignominious horde of military adventurers, barrack conspirators, ignorant and ambitious men! Do you believe these men are sincere in saying they rose for the sake of proclaiming the cantons? Do you believe they would not have risen even if we had already proclaimed the cantons? If so, you don't know them at all. What care they for the cantons? What do they know about the cantons? Even if we had promulgated the most republican constitution in the world, the most federal—if we had put in practice all the social Utopias, if we had transformed the earth, as Jacob Boehm wanted it transformed—these men still would have risen, because, bullanqueros (rioters) by nature, all they aim at is to fish a grade or two out of the troubled waters of shameless disturbances!"

He next passed off to praise the monarchists who had joined the republic from pure motives of patriotism, citing several of these by name, such as Labra, Sauromn, Canalejas, and Gomez Marin, and then he turned again to apostrophize Gen. Contreras and his colleagues in no gentle terms:

"We of the majority have won over to our side those who once were monarchists, but always great orators and thinkers, who believe that in these supreme moments, and until the republic is consolidated, they ought to sustain the modest and patriotic role they are playing in our ranks. But you, with your Generals and their history stained with republican blood, rebel against the republic solely because the national conscience will not consent to your occupying the first posts in it."

THE CAUSE OF THE CARLISTS.

The possibility of a Carlist triumph was then hinted at as due to these divisions among the republicans. Castelar believed it might come about, though he was sure it would be but temporary.

"GENTLEMEN—The Chamber applauded Senor Rios Rosas a day or two ago, when he said he did not believe in the possibility of a Carlist restoration. Neither do I believe it, nor can I believe it. It is impossible in Spain to impose the Inquisition again upon the conscience, the censor upon thought, silence upon the tribune, the gag upon the press, amortization upon the soil freed by the blood of our fathers, or the convent of the lazy upon the factory of the laborer. No, it is impossible that the King, restored by so many clerical hordes, and anointed by the inheritance of so many tyrants, should come, like his ancestors, amid a double row of scaffolds, from which there hang the livid heads of the assassinated patriots, or amid the plaudits of those fanatical multitudes who stretch out their hands and ask that they be chained, and launch from their throats the cry of 'Death to Spain!' ('Muera España!') No, all this is as far off from us as the horrors of Nero or Tiberius. Before consenting to the reign of Don Carlos, rather would I say, let Spain be sunk to the bottom of the sea! One thing may happen, however, transitorily, but it may happen. There may be a parenthesis of a few days, or a few months, when the pretender may come to the palace of Madrid, as Jose I., the Frenchman, came in spite of the heroism of our fathers. Know you how this may be? By the insanity and senselessness of the republicans."

The orator next proceeded to refute the charges of personal ambition the Left so frequently make against him in their speeches and their press. The conclusion of the speech was worthy of the orator.

"While these canton founders seize the ships and commit piracy in them, while they break up the national unity, while they destroy discipline in the army, and commit nameless atrocities, the Carlists are advancing on Bilbao, on Estella, on Tolosa, and on Berga, [illegible] one of our heroic Espartero, and we, after that sad consideration, whose names were borne by the inflamed waves of civil war, are about to leave ourselves to [illegible] and by [illegible] was also."

Alluding then to an incident which occurred the other day in the defense of Estella against the Carlists, to call in question the patriotism of Gen. Contreras and his colleagues, Castelar concluded thus:

"Ah, gentlemen, I do not see the patriot in the deputy who leaves this house and raises the province in rebellion, who dismembers the country and who places a hated and hateful flag on the mast of the ships of Don Juan of Austria and of the Marquis of Santa Cruz! I do not see Spain in him! But I see the patriot and I see the country in the simple-hearted volunteer of Estella, who, with his wife by his side, was found seated on a hundred quintals of gunpowder, with the lighted torch in his hand, awaiting the entrance of the Carlist faction into the citadel, to die like a hero! Yes, in him I see the patriot, in him I see the country of Viriato and of Palayo, and of the Cid, and of Diaz, and of Velarde—the country of the martyr Gerona and of the sainted Zaragoza!"

CLOSING INCIDENTS.

Imagination can hardly conceive the electrical effect of this closing sentence, for with it Castelar sat down. The scene was repeated which attended the close of his celebrated speech on religious liberty in April, 1869. The house and galleries shook with applause, while the members who were seated nearest to him seized him in their arms, patted him, hugged him, and dozens of them kissed him! The example was followed by the whole house, save the 14 or 15 Deputies of the Left, who preserved a stolid silence. The President of the Ministry, Senor Salmeron, went up to him and embraced him. So did all the Ministerial bench. Then came the Vice President, Senor Cervera, and the Secretaries, all crowding round him. I never saw anything like it. For nearly half an hour the house amused itself in these practical demonstrations of regard for its greatest orator. At last they returned to business, and the motion of Senor Prefumo was carried by 125 to 15, and it has since been formally gazetted, to the intense annoyance of the censured intransigentes.

THE TERRITORIES.

Fall races begin at Boise City next Monday.

A slight hoar frost fell in Deep Creek Valley, Montana, on the 28th ult.

The Bozeman Avant Courier, it is reported, has temporarily suspended publication.

Eighty-five fine beef cattle have just come over the Snoqualmie Pass for the Victoria market.

Tacoma wants a town magistrate, and the Tribune nominates Major A. G. Brown for the position.

The Grand Lodge of F. and A. M. of Montana will convene at the Masonic Temple, in Helena, on the first Monday in October.

Mr. Blackwell, formerly proprietor of the Clarendon Hotel in this city will have charge of the N. P. R. R. Co.'s new hotel at Tacoma.

Walla Walla will wager what loose change she has on horse races which begin on the 14th prox., and continue five days at the track near that city.

A straw shed at the military post at Walla Walla caught fire recently and was consumed. The blaze alarmed the people of the town, who all turned out.

About $1,600 have been subscribed for the Presbyterian Church at Deer Lodge. As soon as the amount reaches $2,000 the contract for the building will be let.

"Never since the great Cedar Creek stampede in 1869," says the Montana Herald, "has this country been so prolific in mining stampedes as at the present time."

For penmanship in Prof. Connor's writing school at Olympia, two prizes were given last week by the teacher, and now he and the committee are quarreling over the award.

The Diamond "R" mule train, J. W. Matkins, master, is now at the Legal Tender mine, Montana, loading up about 40,000 pounds of silver ore for shipment East for reduction.

An Idaho Court scene: Judge—Have you anything to offer to the Court before sentence is passed on you? Prisoner—"No, Judge, I had ten dollars, but my lawyers took that."

The brewery belonging to one Hostetter at Fort Colville, was destroyed by fire week before last. There seems to be but little room to doubt that the fire was set by an incendiary.

A number of horses have "mysteriously disappeared" from the vicinity of Silver City, recently. Indian movements about there have been mysterious, which accounts for the disappearance of the horses.

Track layers on the N. P. R. R., near Nisqually, have run out of rails and suspended work until the arrival of the steamship Idaho, which is due from San Francisco with enough iron to lay five miles of track.

The residence of Mr. James Fudge, about six miles from Waitsburg, W. T., was destroyed by fire on Wednesday morning, the 10th inst. He had very nearly completed an addition to the house, and it will be quite a severe loss.

The shipments of gold, silver, copper and other ores; wheat, barley, rye, oats, etc., etc.,—products of Montana mines and soil—continue to leave Helena by express from day to day for the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

The Yellowstone Exploring Expedition, after remaining in camp on the Yellowstone several weeks, expecting each day to start, has finally fizzled out. Some of the men have joined the expedition to Clark's Fork, but the majority of them have returned to their homes in different sections of the Territory.

The English ship Lenore arrived at Port Townsend on Tuesday of last week from Callao, and went on up to Port Blakely. She mistook Eagle Harbor, two miles below Port Blakely, for Blakely Harbor, and going in, ran on a reef. At last accounts she was still aground, though uninjured. The Lenore will load lumber at the Blakely mill, and return to Callao.

Just after the issue of our paper last week, says the Missoulian of the 28th ult., we received news that rich and probably extensive mines had been discovered on Trout creek, a stream that empties into the Missouri river some four miles above the mouth of Cedar creek. Since that time we have received additional news, all of which confirms the first reports.

The Tacoma Tribune is informed that Mr. Wolf Schafer, proprietor of the N. P. R. R. Brewery in Steilacoom, the other day purchased from Mr. L. F. Thompson, the Puyallup hop-grower, twenty-five 200 lb bales of this season's crop of hops. Mr. Wolf made this purchase on the recommendation of his brewer, who has found the hops of this Territory superior to those of California. This is encouraging to the hop-growers of the Territory and we hope they will in future reap golden harvests from the good repute of this product.

The Walla Walla Spirit of the 11th has this: "O. F. Clark, ex-County Commissioner of Umatilla county, Oregon, was arrested last week on a charge of incest, the crime being alleged to have been committed on his own daughter, a girl of about 16 years. The accused was brought for examination before Justice Moore, in Pendleton, and the evidence elicited is said to have been very strong. So much so was it, in fact, as to warrant the Justice to place the defendant under bonds of $1,000 to appear before the Circuit Court. The case has excited much comment among the people of that region, and is peculiarly unfortunate in its developments."

The Sixth Annual Report of the United States Geological Survey of the Territories, by Professor Hayden is published. It make a book of 844 octavo pages. The maps accompanying it will make a complete revolution in published geographies of the Snake, Madison and Yellowstone headwaters. Madison Fork, it says, rises in a small lake, hitherto unnoted, and Madison Lake belongs entirely to the Pacific slope. At the upper end of Shoshone Lake, a new geyser basin has been discovered, with about 100 springs, many of a still more remarkable character than those of the famous Fire Hole Basin. From the summit of the divide between the Atlantic and Pacific watershed, the scope of vision embraced a radius of 150 miles, within which 470 mountain peaks worthy of name could be discerned, and the area swept by the eye could not have been less than fifty thousand square miles, a large portion reaching Montana, Idaho and Utah Territories.

The Walla Walla Spirit of the West says: "A great and important combination has been effected among the owners of flouring mills throughout this valley. It seems that they have unanimously bound themselves together in one combination to carry out certain plans of operations in their line of business. The aggregate capital thus represented is about $75,000. The objects of the combination are to buy cheap and sell high. They will raise the price of wheat to 45 cents per bushel, and the price of flour to $4 25 per barrel. The millers, we are informed, will buy only so much grain as they want to convert into flour, and that at their own prices, and will grind only what flour they can sell, arranging the selling price to suit themselves. When they have ground what flour they want, they will grind no more, and if one mill will be sufficient to do this grinding, only one mill shall run—and so on to as many mills as this new style of a grange may need. They propose to pay one cent per pound freight on flour to Lewiston from here, and three-quarters of a cent to the same place from Dayton. They propose to take the thing into their own hands, and to run it to suit themselves, not, the farmers or anybody. In short, Webster could not have found a more apt illustration of the true meaning of the word, 'monopoly.'"

OREGON.

The school at Jefferson is an incorporated institution, and is in successful operation, with two male teachers.

Mr. Brown, the section boss, who was recently run over by a hand-car above Salem, and severely injured, is again out on his pins.

We learn that a good opening for a physician will be found at Jefferson. The present physician at that place contemplates removing shortly.

A good but earnest preacher up the valley who has but few hearers these warm Sundays, invariably prays for the "absent brethren who are prostrated on beds of sickness and chairs of wellness."

The report that Friedlander, the great wheat man of San Francisco, had entered the Oregon market and was buying at Albany, created quite a stir among the Linn county farmers last Friday and Saturday.

The saloon of Charles Beazier, at Walla Walla, was robbed of $110 in greenbacks last week. Henry Murphy was arrested on suspicion but the evidence did not justify his detention and Henry went free.

A correspondent at Jefferson says the Beaver Hosiery Co. at that place, is silent, the flouring mill grinds only for custom, the sawmill runs about half the time, and the chair factory works slowly but surely.

The Dallas Republican learns that quite a stabbing affray occurred on the Luckiamute in Polk county, last week. The trouble was between two men named respectively Alderman and Tethrow, and the latter received two cuts, but was not killed.

A Polk county man is collecting statistical information as to the number of sheep killed in the county during the past year by dogs wolves or disease. We presume he will present the matter to the Legislature as killing argument against dogs.

MASSACHUSETTS REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

WORCESTER, Sept. 11.—The following is the platform adopted by the Republican Convention yesterday. The first resolution is as follows:

Resolved, That the Republicans of Massachusetts emphatically disapprove of and condemn the action of those members of the last Congress, Republicans and Democrats, who availed themselves of the occasion to obtain an increase of salary; and of the President, and judges of the Supreme Court, and members of the Cabinet, who suppose it to be just and necessary for the future to secure to themselves a disproportionate and extravagant compensation for past as well as future service.

The second resolution denounces all attempts on the part of Government officials to interfere in State politics by coercing their subordinates or others into the support of their own favorite men or measures, and asks the President to remove any official found guilty of so doing.

The third resolution favors cheap freight transportation, and asserts that the power vested by the Constitution in Congress to regulate commerce between States includes jurisdiction over this great subject, and calls on Congress and State Legislatures to so exercise all their powers over railroads and all such monopolies.

The fourth resolves that to the Republican party is due all the good accomplished in the country, in the past, and that it is the only hope of good government in the future, and calls upon all Republicans to unite in the great object of the hour—of securing honesty and purity in public officials and in politics.

The fifth resolution demands the adoption of the ten-hour system for women and children in factories.

The sixth declares that the Republican party is a party of temperance and order, and favors an honest, impartial execution of all laws, especially those for the suppression of crime, intemperance and disorder; that the character of such laws must be determined by the Legislature, and when determined, should be obeyed until repealed.

The last resolution commends the ticket to the support of the people.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT 16 1873

THE DESTROYERS OF THE PARTY

A letter from Salem states that Hon Rufus Mallory and J J Rickey Esq of that city openly denounce the Hipple resolution. We do not mention this as in any way remarkable for we have scarcely been able to find a Republican who has not denounced it but we mention these persons because they have always been counted among the most devoted friends of Mr Mitchell. We presume they are his friends still, but they are men who regard the triumph of the Republican party, and the preservation of its honor more highly than the ambitious purposes of any man friend or foe. The truth is that persons who wish to uphold the first principles of social honor upon which the family relation is based, are unanimous in deprecating the action of the Convention in this matter. It is not true that the morals of the whole Republican party are debauched. It is not true that any considerable portion of the party favor the endorsement of the indefensible private life of Senator Mitchell. It is not true that any considerable portion of the Senator's personal friends approve or excuse his conduct when the matter is touched upon in their presence. The most they say is, "let the dead past bury its dead." The stoutest of his defenders at Albany never once had the hardihood to deny the charges made against him. How could they, when he, himself, on mature reflection retracted the contradictions he uttered when the disclosures were fresh made, and confessed the worst to be true?

It was not the mission of the Convention to make the personal character of the Senator an issue before the people one way or another. A resolution of condemnation would have been objectionable, notwithstanding the almost unanimous sentiment of the party is outspoken in its condemnation. Questions affecting the political course of a public servant have, in rare instances, been acted upon as a party matter, but we can call to mind no instance before this one, in which the private life of even a United States Senator has been made the subject of authoritative action by the highest Convention of the party. No authority was delegated to the members of this Convention to bind the party on this matter, for it was not presented to the people or considered by them at the primaries, and was not contemplated by them when they chose the delegates. This Convention could not rightfully have endorsed the Senator's private character, had that been wholly unexceptionable, for the simple reason that they were authorized only to nominate a [illegible] and declare the position of the party on public questions. If they were unauthorized to bind the party to an endorsement of a private life that was without taint and not open to criticism, with how much less room could they declare the character of a man who acknowledges his life to have been so [illegible] that his crimes can not be mentioned in the family, to be a true embodiment of the moral sentiments of the party! This is just what the Mitchell [illegible] in the Republican platform does [illegible]. There is no possible method of [illegible] away from this position. The Republicans of Oregon entertain no such [illegible] sentiments as this resolution [illegible] to commit them to. When the matter is brought home to their consciences they repudiate the vile sentiment in toto. And yet Republicans of Oregon, the fathers of sons and daughters, are asked to vote an unqualified approval of these sentiments and of the action of the Convention which has declared them a part of Republican principles.

Whatever we might wish in the case it is idle to shut our eyes to the facts. The Republicans of Oregon will not accept this dishonor. They will repudiate the whole corrupt thing. The Republican party is defeated already, and they are responsible for its defeat who have attempted to bind its conscience to an approval of gross immoralities and crimes against all law, human and divine. Hereafter there will be no question who were the enemies of the Republican party. The Custom House ring, organized by John H. Mitchell's skill in the use of unclean material, and supported by Mr Holladay's money till it became strong enough to seize the control of the whole party. Still we will not believe the old party is utterly wrecked. It will drive out the unclean birds and arise again above the rings, free itself here as it has elsewhere from that subserviency to monopolies into which its faithless leaders have betrayed it, and stand forth as the party of the people, the party of equal rights, exact justice and impartial administration of the laws. The rebuke of defeat which it is now about to receive may prove a means of hastening this consummation.

THE FEELING AMONG REPUBLICANS

We are in receipt of letters from prominent Republicans in the counties of Clackamas, Marion, Linn, Lane, Benton, Polk, Washington and Wasco all agreeing that the Republican candidate can neither cut loose from the white washing resolution nor carry it. These letters state that large numbers of Republicans in these counties respectively who have never heretofore faltered in the support of the Republican ticket do not conceal their disgust at the action of the Convention nor hesitate to declare that they will not support the nominee. In some sections it is said Smith cannot possibly receive more than one-third of the Republican vote.

His defeat is conceded by [illegible] selves. We heard one [illegible] yesterday explaining [illegible] abroad the nature of the matter [illegible] creating so much dissension [illegible] ranks of the Republican party [illegible] spoke about thus: "You see, Senator Mitchell used to be a pretty hard case, they say he seduced a girl that was going to school to him afterwards married her at the muzzle of her father's pistol, and after living with her two or three years and having two children born to him of her, besides the one born before marriage eloped with a school marm taking with him the eldest child and some thousands of dollars of his clients' money and went to California. [illegible] was John M Hipple before he left Pennsylvania, but when he turned up in California, he went under the name of John H Mitchell and the school marm passed for Mrs John H Mitchell. He tried to practice law in San Luis Obispo but did not succeed very well, and after a few months of genteel idleness he left that point to seek his fortune further up the coast. In a few weeks afterward he came to the surface at Portland minus the school marm and minus all his money. Here he succeeded better, as all [illegible] know, and somewhat over a year after his arrival say in February 1862 he married his present wife. It [illegible] that he hadn't been divorced from his former wife at that time and in 1867 he went back to Pennsylvania and not having any grounds upon which to obtain a divorce gave his former wife who was only [illegible] circumstances and was working as a house servant to maintain the children, $800, to induce her to bring against him a suit for divorce on the ground of desertion. And so after having for five years one wife more than the law allows he was enabled to bring himself to the legal allowance and then being elected to the U S Senate under his assumed name the whole matter came to light, and of course the Republicans, that being the party by which he was elected, made some noise about his deceiving them. He became very much alarmed about the security of his seat in the U S Senate under these circumstances and feeling that an endorsement by his party in Oregon would strengthen him very much at Washington he determined to get an endorsement from the State Convention if possible.

The Convention came off last Thursday and by some hook or crook he managed to get a resolution passed endorsing him as a man of honor and integrity. Of course the result is that a very large majority of the Republicans are highly indignant, and the candidate Mr Hiram Smith, who, by the way, is a pretty clever fellow, is going to be badly beaten. That's really all there is of the thing."

The gentleman turned away simply replying "That's all there is of it, is it?"

THE TRUE REPUBLICANS.

The following are the names of the members of the Republican State Convention who thought more of the harmony and success of the Republican party and the honor of the State than of the ambition of Senator Mitchell, and who therefore voted against the resolution casting the burden of the Senator's sins upon the Republican party:

A M Witham, of Benton county; J K Wait and John T. Apperson, of Clackamas county, S Dawson, Geo F Simpson, Robert Glass, O H Tompkins, S H Laughlin, J H Johnson and John McCoy, of Linn county, J Bachelor, W L Wade, E N Thomas, Thomas Cross, Stephen Smith, W R Dunbar, T C Shaw, C J Coffey and Joseph Engle, of Marion County, Isaac Smith, McM Dodson and B F Nichols, of Polk county, A Hinman, A C. Aschbold, A. Luelling and James McKay, of Washington county, B Killin, of Multnomah county, A R Burbank, W S Powell and W J Garrison, of Yamhill county.

These men number thirty in all, not one of whom was a Federal officer, not one of whom was under the least suspicion of belonging to the monopoly's ring, and not one of whom cast more than one vote.

Only three of them were proxies, and each of these represented principals whose opposition to the corrupt and unrepublican practices are well known.

Contrast these names with the forty five who cast sixty seven votes for the kalsomining resolution a large number of whom were federal office-holders who hold their positions at the sufferance of Senator Mitchell, some of whom were salaried employes of the railway monopoly, and nearly all of whom were professional politicians and ask yourself whether or not Senator Mitchell has received the endorsement of the free Republican party of Oregon.

The movement among the Roman Catholic clergy in New York to establish parochial schools for the education of Catholic children and the propagation of the faith is gaining strength in the East. A New York Times reporter in a recent interview with an eminent priest of Brooklyn credits him with saying that it was neither his desire nor the intention of the movement to crush the American public school system, although he admitted that the parents of his parish would be called upon to withdraw their children. A more recent dispatch from New York says of the preparations now being made: "Rev Brother Jasper of the Catholic Order of Christian Brothers arrived yesterday accompanied by [illegible] men belonging to that society who have been educated to serve as teachers in the Roman Catholic Parochial schools about to be established throughout the United States. [illegible] more young men of the same society are expected. Brother Jasper has [illegible] in all on his list. Thirty seven came to this country last year for this purpose."

We have received a letter from a prominent Republican of Marion county stating that there are not three Republicans in the precinct in which Mr C N Terry of Salem formerly S H Terry resides who do not unconditionally repudiate and denounce his action in voting for the resolution kalsomining the character of our bigamous Senator.

We were in error in stating in yesterday morning's paper that the Hon Joseph Engle of Marion county voted with the Hipplites on the endorsement resolution. Our attention having been called to the error we gladly correct it. We should hate to charge any innocent man with having taken part in bringing this disgrace upon the Republican party.

An exchange is authority for the statement that Congress at its last session passed a law requiring that cattle in transit on railroad trains shall receive food and drink at least once in twenty four hours. This act was intended to apply to Eastern roads where cattle are shipped thousands of miles without changing cars. It will go into effect October 1st.

COUNTERFEITING GOLD COIN.

INGENUITY OF COUNTERFEITERS—A GOVERNMENT EXPERT

The New York Times prints the following interview with Mr Ashley of the Sub-Treasury in New York, in regard to the counterfeiting of gold coins.

Referring to the practice of counterfeiting Mr Ashley remarked that there was filled coins of the denomination of $20 and then added "I suppose you don't know what a filled coin is?" On receiving an affirmative response to his query Mr Ashley took from a small drawer a double eagle which to all appearance was perfectly genuine. The minutest examination of the surface and of the milled edge failed to disclose any marks of fraudulent manipulation; the weight was correct to the decimal of a gram and when struck on the counter the coin gave a loud clear ring, true as any which were taken from a neighboring pile of the genuine article. Nothing seemed wanting in this skillful counterfeit but it was a counterfeit, nevertheless.

"This is a filled coin" continued Mr Ashley as he balanced it on the tip of his fingers. "The weight is correct, it appears good, the acid test would fail on it and the sound is true. It is one of the most dangerous counterfeits ever made. Here is another cut through the center to show the filling. You see that the inside of the coin is filled with a composition of platina. To fill in this the milled edge has been carefully removed, the coin sliced in two, and the inside of it pared away leaving the two faces intact. An amount of the composition of the same weight has been substituted for the more valuable metal removed and the several parts of the coin have been skillfully joined together again and none but an expert can detect the signs of the work. From a double eagle the amount of gold thus removed amounts to $14 so you see a man could make a living if he only made one of these filled coins a day."

In response to an inquiry how the fraudulent coins were detected Mr Ashley stated that there was a clerk in the building who could pick every one out of a heap of genuine coin as unerringly as a mother would pick her children out of a schoolful of others. "You shall see," he continued and taking the filled piece placed it edgewise among some forty or more pure ones. Then laying the pile down he called from his place some distance off one of his clerks and said "Mr Fandy will you please separate the good from the bad in these coins." The gentleman thus addressed scrutinized the upturned edges of the coins and threw out the counterfeit in an instant. Mr Ashley then spread them out on the counter and thoroughly mixed them up. Again the counterfeit was detected at a glance. Twice the experiment was made and with the same result. Some one diverted Mr Fandy's attention for an instant and Mr Ashley quickly removed the counterfeit coin, and once more asked the expert to search the mass. He did so but was not deceived though for a moment puzzled. He pronounced all the coins to be genuine and Mr Ashley triumphantly threw down the counterfeit. Mr Fandy did not explain how he detected the false pieces further than that they didn't look right and Mr Ashley frankly confessed he could not himself tell how it was done, neither could he do it. Some of the filled pieces were shown which seemed absolutely perfect, particularly one five dollar piece which was pronounced a marvel of workmanship. To successfully fill a coin so small and thin as this is naturally a more difficult and delicate operation than filling the thick and heavy double eagles. But the perverse ingenuity of the counterfeiters is equal to it and only the eye of so skillful an expert as the gentleman who so triumphantly displayed the coin to the reporter is competent to detect the fraud.

CITY.

A Sa[illegible] De[illegible].—A few days ago Mr Thomas [illegible] of East Portland and several other persons were out hunting near the [illegible] river a large fine buck was [illegible]. It was in the immediate vicinity of the river and the frightened animal true to instinct made for the stream. But the quick eye and practiced hand of [illegible] was too much for the deer with all its agility. Before it made a [illegible] bounds a rifle ball was sent crashing through the shoulders of the beautiful animal. It received a death wound but still bent its flying steps toward the river. Reaching the bank it plunged in and swam to the opposite shore hotly pursued by Tom's favorite [illegible] dog. On touching the land the deer made towards the thick undergrowth which lined the bank. However the bank was very high and steep at the point where the deer and dog reached the shore. In attempting to scale the bank the deer which had lost much blood fell back into the water and expired. At that point the river was not wide but was deep. None of the party could swim and no boat could be obtained. To cross the stream the party would be obliged to walk nearly four miles. The prize was a rich one and the party did not like to lose it. Tom at length concluded he would endeavor to make his dog tow the dead buck across. The animal was an excellent retriever but towing a deer across a river was out of its line. However by dint of much coaxing and scolding, Tom induced his dog to take hold of the animal and to start towards him. It was no small feat to accomplish, the water ran swift, the dog was small and the deer large and several times the faithful little creature let go its hold. By encouragement it would tackle the deer resolutely again and strike out for the shore. At length the dog with its precious load of flesh, reached the land where the party were standing and both were drawn out on the shore. The dog never had any training prior to that time with such large game considering which fact, Tom feels quite as proud of the feat, as does his favorite canine.

Stabbing Affray.—A stabbing affair occurred last night, about 8 o'clock in the Chinese gambling house of Sin Luke, on Alder street, between two Chinamen. An altercation ensued between a couple of Chinamen over the gaming table, when one of the parties drew a knife and stabbed the other in the left side. The knife entered the cavity between the ribs in the immediate vicinity of the heart and penetrated to a depth of several inches, inflicting a very dangerous if not fatal wound. Confusion and great noise followed the affray and officer Buck who happened to be standing at the moment on the other side of the street directly opposite the gambling den started across. Before he reached the middle of the street, the Chinaman who did the stabbing started out at the front door to effect his escape. He saw the officer approaching, and turning on his heel re-entered the den, ran through the crowd and made his escape out through the back door just as Buck came in the front way. Search was made for the would-be murderer. In the prevailing darkness he eluded the officers and thus made good his escape. As he is well known there will be little difficulty about the indentification of the fellow who perpetrated the stabbing. Unless he has fled the city he will assuredly be captured to-day ere long. Late last night the condition of the wounded Chinaman was very critical and we should not be surprised to hear of his death at any time.

Carrying the Hatchet.—Truthful men, it is often said, carry about with them a "little hatchet," in imitation of the illustrious example set by the Father of his Country. But it cannot be often said, with strict regard to truth, that Chinamen are addicted to habits of veracity, or to carrying about on their person the proverbial hatchet. However, last evening officer Norton observed a suspicious-looking Celestial skulking along the street. He accosted John and desired to know what he was carrying on his person, which he seemed so desirous of concealing from view. John did not appear very communicative on that subject, and tried to make off. He was too closely pursued by Norton, and soon came to "bay," when ordered so to do. On examining Norton found under his shirt a bran new hatchet which he had evidently filched from some hardware store. John loudly protested his innocence, but being unable to explain where and how he came into possession of the article, he was placed under arrest and lodged in jail. This morning he will be interviewed by the Police Judge. There is no doubt but what the Celestial told a falsehood, notwithstanding he carried a veritable hatchet.

Free of Charge.—We learn that both the Oregon Steam Navigation and Willamette River Transportation Companies have generously consented to pass over their respective lines, all specimens—such as birds, insects, fossils, geological, historical or natural curiosities, that may be donated to the Oregon Museum recently established in this city. No charges for freight will be made on any articles that may be forwarded from any portion of the State, destined for the museum. The action of these companies is certainly commendable, and its good effects will not be lost upon the museum which is yet in its most incipient stages. Persons who reside in various portions of the State and who desire to encourage the enterprise, are requested to forward at once any specimen or curiosity which they may have in their possession. Donations that may be sent from abroad or which may be given by persons residing here are to be labeled appropriately, giving the name classification, etc., of the specimen and also the name of the individual donating the same.

Making out the Rolls.—Three expert and competent clerks, besides Mr Dolan, the Assessor are busily engaged in making out the assessment rolls for 1873. One of these copies will be forwarded to the Secretary of State and be examined by the State Board of Equalization, one copy will be retained in the office of the County Clerk and one in the Sheriff's office. As yet not more than one-third of the rolls have been completed but the force employed are working as expeditiously as possible. Two weeks at least will be required to finish the rolls. Yesterday the Clerks had copied half through the letter "H." As near as can be approximated the total valuation of the property exclusive of debts and exemptions under the law as far as the clerks have advanced in the work is $4,111,434. Two thirds of the roll remains yet to complete. At that rate the total valuation of the property in Multnomah county for this year would exceed twelve millions of dollars.

S. S. Concert.—On Sunday evening the regular monthly Sunday School Concert of the First Congregational Church of this city was held. A large audience was present on the interesting occasion and the exercises were highly enjoyable. One of the most pleasing features of the evening was descriptions of the mountains of Palestine, given by the different pupils of the school. At the conclusion of the interesting exercises H. H. Northup, Esq. recited a poem in a very happy and pleasing style. This was followed by an address delivered by Mr [illegible] which was listened to with marked attention. Miss [illegible] in her usual excellent style [illegible]

District [illegible].—Wm M[illegible] [illegible] the sum of $1100 [illegible] School Fund [illegible] $4401 [illegible] year [illegible] three mills.

Free Lecture.—Mr [illegible] will deliver a free lecture [illegible] in this city on next Friday evening at [illegible] o'clock. His subject will be [illegible] Agitation. He charges no fee and asks that the people turn out en masse. Let the house be filled.

Time of Sailing.—The steamer John L. Stephens which will be due here this evening from San Francisco, is announced to sail hence on Friday, September 19th, at 2 o'clock P. M.

Condition Better.—The friends of Captain Daniel Wright will be pleased to learn that his condition yesterday was rather hopeful and much more favorable than could have been anticipated considering the grave character of the injuries. He was resting quite easy. His [illegible] yesterday was perfectly correct [illegible] conversed freely and intelligently. However his injuries are regarded as very dangerous and the result is involved in doubt. Amputation has not been performed [illegible] but it is quite probable that the left leg will have to be taken off. Since the accident Mr Wright has suffered very much.

S[illegible].—Mr [illegible] Charles [illegible] advertises the sale of [illegible] block [illegible] on next Wednesday [illegible]. A splendid bargain will be offered [illegible] a most valuable piece of property [illegible] stands [illegible]

Arrested.—An old Chinaman was arrested last evening by officer Norton who was wandering about the street with a small basket filled with divers articles of Chinese manufacture. He was evidently endeavoring to carry on the peddling business without license. Not being able to give a satisfactory account of his movements, he was arrested and taken to the city jail. The case will be inquired into this morning.

Change of [illegible].—The attention of all persons interested is called to the change of time of the O. S. N. Co.'s boats to Astoria and Monticello which takes effect this day. There will hereafter be a regular tri-weekly mail boat to Astoria and also an irregular boat for towing and lighting vessels. The Monticello boat will leave at 6 A. M. instead of 7 and will run through to West[illegible] and Cathlamet.

Dislocated.—Joseph Taylor while playing the match game of cricket last Saturday afternoon dislocated his shoulder. He was in the act of throwing a ball and gave his arm a sudden and violent wrench which threw the bone out of the socket. He was removed to this city where the limb was set since which time Taylor has experienced but little pain or inconvenience from it.

Pile Driving Commenced.—Pile driving commenced on the new government wharf at Vancouver last Saturday morning. This morning a number of carpenters from this city and East Portland will go over to begin work. One month will be required to complete the wharf until which time work will be pushed vigorously.

Leave of Absence.—Mr Nicholas Clinton the Street Commissioner of East Portland was granted by the Board of Trustees last evening, leave of absence for one month. During that time Mr C. will be engaged on the new Government wharf at Vancouver. Mr F. R. Neale was appointed pro tem Commissioner during the absence of Mr Clinton.

Commissioner.—Gov. Ferry, of Washington Territory has appointed O. F. Bell Esq. of this city, a Commissioner of Deeds for that Territory, to reside in this State.

NEW GAS HOLDER.

In the immediate vicinity of I and Sixth streets, the very air is redolent with the clatter of hammers. About ten men are constantly employed in bolting and riveting together the sections of the immense gas tank or holder which has been undergoing the putting together process for about six weeks. During that time an incredible amount of work has been performed by the force of men engaged. Several thousand sections of the plate iron were required to make this holder which is 80 feet in diameter and about 40 feet high. Probably each section requires from 50 to 80 iron bolts to hold it firmly in its proper place in the tank. Each of these bolts have to be driven through the plates where the edges overlap and then firmly and strongly riveted with hammers so that some conception of the necessary amount of labor can be formed. The interior of the holder is strongly braced. Both the top and sides are held together by powerful iron braces, reaching from one to the other—the ends of which are bolted firmly to the plates. This is to strengthen the holder throughout and render it sufficiently strong to resist the tremendous outward pressure of the confined gas. When finished and ready for the reception of the gas the holder will be like an immense tin bucket inverted in the reservoir. Before the gas is forced, by means of machinery, from the retorts where it is generated into the tank, the holder is completely full of water. Every atom of air is excluded from the inside. As soon as the gas begins to enter the holder its specific gravity being far less than water it naturally rises very rapidly. Coming in contact with the top of the holder at the surface of the water, and finding no means of egress it forces up gradually the whole tank. Large iron posts have been erected at interval around the edge of the brick of the reservoir that contains the water into which the holder is immersed—open end down. These posts act as "guides," as the tank rises by the buoyancy of the gas and prevents it from careening to either side. The gas is driven into the holder until it is hoisted nearly its entire height above the top of the brick or until the lower rim of the tank is within a few feet of the surface of the water. At that altitude the holder is allowed to remain. The weight of the tank—many tons—presses equally on the confined body of gas, and the elevation or depression of the holder depends, of course on the decrease or augmentation of the quantity of gas. This enormous weight forces the gas out through the mains which ramify the city and constitutes so to speak the "head" or motive power that drives the inflammable material through the channels provided for its distribution and maintains a steady uniform pressure throughout every foot of the gas pipes. Each burner that may be lighted is supplied by means of this pressure and the flame constantly fed as rapidly as it consumes the gas. The gas which is being constantly generated at the retorts is forced into the tank and thus the supply and consumption of the article is about equal and the holder maintains its position varying a little in its altitude as the stream of gas which enters exceeds or falls short of the quantity that is escaping.

The Gas Company are expending every effort to have the tank finished and ready for service. An enlargement of the gas works is held in contemplation to meet the demand required in the completion of the new holder. Workmen are engaged in putting on the finishing courses of the plates. Present appearances would indicate, judging from the activity with which the work is moving ahead that everything will be in condition for service in the course of a month.

TO THE PUBLIC.

We are now getting on the way a new and fresh stock of fine furniture which will be superior in quality and newer in design than the one destroyed by the fire and which we will offer for sale on advantageous terms. Meanwhile we are well prepared to supply the present demand from our temporary location corner of Fifth and Taylor streets, near the U. S. Custom House. Respectfully

HURGREN & SHINDLER

General Fremont's Bald Porcupine Island in Mount Desert Harbor narrowly escaped entire ruin a few days since. Its whole beauty consists in its trees and it has been a favorite picnic ground. A picnic party built a fire on it the other evening and when they left neglected to stamp it all out. It spread, and was only extinguished after 36 hours hard labor on the part of the numerous boatmen, by a providential shower, just as it reached the grove. The result is that Mrs Fremont has had posted at all the landings a notice in her own hand writing forbidding all parties from landing. General Fremont himself is lying ill at the Agamont House.

Out of Health.

In this common expression is comprehended an immense amount of bodily and mental suffering. It is not necessary to be affected with positive disease in order to experience unutterable wretchedness. A person out of health is weak languid low spirited incapable of much exertion nervous irritable and as sensitive to every change of temperature as the mercury in a thermometer. What such a person requires is invigoration and Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will supply it. No need of applying to a physician in such a case. The fee would be thrown away. At the nearest drug store may be had the most efficient and healthful vegetable tonic that the world contains. Twenty five years experience has established the fact that among all the stomachics and alteratives known to modern pharmacy this powerful restorative stands supreme unapproached. Every bottle of Hostetter's Bitters contains more blessings than there were curses in Pandora's box.

COLEMAN'S EUCALYPTUS

Dr J. S. Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus is a preparation combining all the valuable medicinal qualities of the Eucalyptus which is cultivated in nearly every California garden for its medical utility, having become the household remedy for all diseases of the KIDNEYS, BLADDER and URINARY CANAL, and SEMINAL WEAKNESS. It seems to have a direct affinity for the GENITO URINARY ORGANS and their surroundings and cures them by its alterative, healing and balsamic properties more effectually than any other known remedy.

It is an invaluable remedy for all diseases of the mucous and serous membranes, such as BRONCHITIS, HACKING COUGH NAUSEA DURING PREGNANCY DYSPEPSIA LEUCORRHŒA, etc.

This preparation is the result of Dr Coleman's experiments with the medicinal properties of the tree in the U. S. Marine Hospital in San Francisco in 1871 and 1872, when he had unusual facilities for testing the various methods of preparing the remedy and its uses. It can be relied upon as certain to give the perfect results and hundreds of testimonials of its efficacy can be seen at his office 405 Kearney street, San Francisco.

COLEMAN'S DOUBLE EXTRACT OF EUCALYPTUS is a powerful yet harmless febrifuge and is a special preparation for the treatment of the malarious fevers of our interior valleys and is warranted to cure any case of FEVER AND AGUE treated with it according to directions while the baneful results of the usual Quinine and arsenical remedies of these diseases are entirely avoided.

The New York Tribune of the 3d inst says: "The Tribune some time ago described a new railroad scheme which was designed to connect the East with the West. The directors were addressed by Mr. Abbott, the engineer of the company, who [illegible] that the Continental Railway would cross the Alleghenies at a summit of but 1,440 feet above sea level, which is far less than the hight of any present line. Hon. Hiram R. Revels, formerly United States Senator, has resigned his office of Secretary of State of Mississippi, probably intending to confine himself in the future more closely to his important and pressing duties as President of Alcorn University. In his letter to Gov. Powers he says that he took the Secretaryship at the beginning of the year at his request, to prevent trouble which was growing out of the rival claims of different gentlemen for that position, each applicant intending to appear before the State Convention, and as the Convention has been held and the nomination made, no difficulty can now arise from any appointment he sees fit to make.

DISPATCH FROM THE TIGRESS

NEW YORK, September 10.—[Special to the [illegible]]—U. S. Steamer Tigress, Disco, August [illegible] via St. John's (N. F.), September 10.—We have at last positive and very late news of the Arctic voyage. The Tigress sailed from Upernavik on the 11th of August, and [illegible] the shores of Northumberland [illegible], where the Tyson party reported they had left the Polaris. No trace of the vessel [illegible] and no sign of life, and it is [illegible] the [illegible] men were mistaken in [illegible] of their separation from the vessel [illegible] found, however, in latitude 78 [illegible] N., longitude 73 min 46 sec. W., we found the camp in which the Buddington party had wintered. Six Esquimaux were living in it, and from them and the manuscript [illegible] left by Captain Buddington, we obtained the history of the expedition up to a period only six months previous. After the separation from Tyson the Polaris party constructed a house by means of the ship's lumber and canvas, in which they passed the winter, the ship being too badly [illegible] to risk the voyage home though she still floated. They used some of the material in her in the construction of two whaleboats with which they proposed going south as soon as the first open weather appeared. On July 1st they were enabled to carry out their intention and put to sea, probably making for Cape York, on the coast of Greenland, about 250 miles to the southeast, where they could hope to catch a whaler bound for Labrador. We kept a sharp lookout all along the coast both going and returning, but saw no signals and no human being. We obtained from the camp all the manuscripts of the expedition, and all the journals.

These records are very long and contain a great deal of valuable information. Buddington's party were all well when they took to their boats on the 1st of July. The Polaris remained afloat till three weeks ago, when she parted her moorings in a gale and drifted two miles southwest and sank in the ice. Two icebergs now cover the wreck.

We will sail to-day for Labrador, in search of whalers which may have picked up the missing men. Nine steam whalers have gone north and are now on the west side. The Juniata leaves at once for St. John's and we shall follow her immediately if we accomplish the object of our voyage. All on board the Tigress are well and full of confidence.

PRINCE ARTHUR ALMOST DROWNED.—Prince Arthur had a narrow escape from drowning at Trouville, on August 19th. Some particulars are given in a special dispatch to the Daily Telegraph. His royal highness went out unattended at an early hour to bathe and after swimming out some distance disappeared under a heavy breaker. A waterman who had been looking on immediately raised a cry for help, and rushed into the water followed by one of the Prince's aids-de-camp who chanced to be at hand. They reached the Prince just as he was becoming insensible and brought him ashore. Attendants from the neighboring Hotel des Roches Noires hurried to the spot with warm water and spirits and after severe rubbing the breath and circulation of the blood were restored. His royal highness was soon able to return to the hotel, and breakfasted heartily notwithstanding what had occurred. Two hours afterward the waterman and others who had assisted were handsomely rewarded and thanked by the Prince. A Reuter's telegram says that his royal highness was saved by the swimming master Coste, by means of a swimming belt. A telegram received later states that his royal highness has not experienced any ill effects from the accident.

COST OF THE LATE WAR TO FRANCE.—The Pall Mall Gazette says: It used to be a common saying here that France was rich enough to pay for her glory, and in these days she little thought of the cost of adversity. Now the attention of the country is drawn to the following items which show what a costly game war sometimes is. There is the war indemnity, [illegible] francs, the interest on the same for two years, 300,000,000 francs, the keep of the German troops, [illegible] francs, requisitions, 581,000 francs, value of objects taken without requisition [illegible] francs, war contribution levied on Paris, 200,000,000 francs, and so on till the amount forms a total of 811,000 francs. But this enormous sum does not include pensions to the army, the damage done to materiel, nor the expenses of reorganization, nearly as much again. The average value of a day's work in France is one franc and a quarter, so it is easy to calculate the amount of labor which will be required to repair the folly of a few months of violence and bloodshed.

Slater, the man who was shot by Miller, [illegible] some weeks ago, still lives, and it is now thought he will recover.

An exchange suggests that the manufacturers and refiners of sugar in this country would do well to follow the example of those of Belgium, some of whom have successfully applied osmosis to the removal of the crystalizable sugar from Molasses obtained from the third crystalization. The advantages claimed for this method are that the molasses remaining after the treatment sells for the same price as ordinary molasses, that the crystallizations of the products of osmosis is effected in one half the time required for that of ordinary sugar, that white sugars are thus obtained in much less time, that the number of crystalizing pans may be reduced one half and that the products obtained are much less colored.

There are over a hundred mills on the Green Bay Wisconsin shore, manufacturing upwards of 500,000,000 feet of lumber annually, employing 16,000 men and an invested capital of $100,000,000. There are over 40 shingle mills, producing 900,000,000 shingles annually. The Peshtigo company has a mill at the mouth of the Peshtigo river that can cut 350,000 feet of lumber in twelve hours and has even exceeded that. The average cut for the season is about 150,000 feet of lumber per day—twelve hours. Last year the average shipments by this company to Chicago were 200,000 per day, or 1,000,000 every five days.

The new ship Three Brothers commenced receiving her cargo of wheat at San Francisco on the 12th inst. She is expected to carry 4,000 tons of 2,240 lbs, the largest wheat cargo ever loaded. She goes to Havre direct, and receives £3 1s freight. E. F. Morgan's Sons have already sold the cargo to Nicholas Ten Bosch, for account and risk of Adolph Schotsmans Aine, Annoeulin (Nord) France. The price paid was 61s ₩ quarter, cost and freight, or the equivalent of 62s 9d cost, freight and insurance.

Many inquiries as to prices and freights on Barley are being received from people interested in the trade in Eastern cities. A circular issued by T. M. & H. Brooke giving the result of numerous inquiries sent to all parts of the country, says that the crop in Canada is of good quality, color and weight, but that the acreage is only 69½ per cent of the usual amount. In New York the acreage is 81 per cent of the usual breadth, the quality generally fine in color and weight. The country tributary to the markets of Milwaukie, Chicago and St. Louis reports as much ground seeded as usual, but a reduction in the yield, and that a large portion of the crop will not grade No. [illegible]

SMALL POX.
DOCTOR BORZFAU'S SMALL POX REMEDY, SAMUEL CORWIN, Proprietor, can be procured at all the Drug Stores in this city at the present time. As this medicine is proving an inestimable boon to those afflicted with that disease, no person should neglect the present opportunity of providing themselves with this valuable antidote.
Price ONE DOLLAR per bottle.

Portland, Oregon, Aug. 22, 1873.
MR. SAMUEL CORWIN—Sir: In justice to yourself and for the benefit of those who may be afflicted with the small pox I am induced to give publicity to the following facts. About the 8th of July 1873 I became very unwell, having severe pain in my head, back and limbs, which continued to increase in severity for three or four days, a very high fever set in, and I began to break out on my face, neck and body with what proved to be small pox. I procured of Dr. Freeland of the Central Drug Store a bottle of your small pox remedy. Notwithstanding the severity of the attack I administered the medicine [illegible] in about [illegible] doses. In [illegible] days all pain and fever disappeared. My recovery was extremely rapid notwithstanding frequent exposures by moving about from place to place while in a high fever, which is generally considered fatal in that disease, and it is my firm conviction that under the ordinary treatment for that disease I would not be living to-day. I took of the medicine about two and a half bottles, more perhaps than was necessary, not wishing to discontinue until the thorough cure was effected.
PETER BURK.
I know from my own knowledge that the foregoing statement is true in every particular.
